"As I turned I found myself face to face with a girl with an old grey shawl enveloping her head and shoulders. She asked if Louid direct her to The Army Rescue Home. I told her the Home was not opened yet, not even ready, but she asanted me that on her release from prison that day the Chief of Police had told her to go and find The Army Rescue Home, as it was her only hope.

"I brought her with me to see the Commissioner, and she told her pitiful tale of twolve years spent on the streets, and how sick she was of her life. But unless we could take her and be responsible for her, she would have to return to the brothel.

What it Means. Its History.

Your mother's well-worn wedding ring has a line of ancestors dating back thousands of years. Long before the time of Christ, wedding rings were used among the Jews. The Story of Lizzie.

How She Came to the Army.

How She Came to the Army.

Poor little Lizzie had spent most of her life leading about her blind inother, who sold little things in the street for a living. But one Winter the mother died, and Lizzie was taken by a distant relative, who not only disliked the child but was very cruel to her. At last she could bear it no longer, so she ran away and made for the nearest oity.

Passing a sort of opensiore, where oils and paints were for sale, she caught sight of a bottle on the counter labeled "Poison." She nover stopped to think; she made one wild dash, and in a moment the bottle was at her lips. There was carbolic in it, which burned her mouth; childies he dropped it and screamed. The proprietor of the store came running in to find out what was the matter. To him Lizzle sobbed cut her story, ending with, "Oh, i can't live without my mother! Now she's gone, no-body cares for me."

our my mother! Now she's gone, no-body cares for me."

"My dear child." said the man, who fortunately for Lizzie was a good one, "I know somebody who will love you and take care of you and look after you. You dry your are come along with me". He took her straight to our Resque Home, where for two years Lizzie was cared for and mothered and looked after. She went to school every day, and was so bright and smart that the matron had visions of high school and college, but when about sixteen she so evidently preferred domesus work that u nice piace close to the Home was procured for her, where she is as happy as can be.—American War Cry.

John Wesley was once refused the privilege of his father's puipit, so he stood upon his tomb three days consecutively and preached the Gospel with power. He said afterward: "I am well assured that I did far more good to my Lincoin parishioners by preaching three days on my father's tomb than I could preaching three years in his pulpit." We need not the pomp and customs of fashion. Away with your precise and dignified gestures when a world is perishing! Away with all your paraphrased and eloquent centences if uttered to the hindrance and free delivery of the Spirit of God! Rather let us continue to seek the power that creates the smoke and din and glorious confusion of real warfare, which always results in victory for God and truth. The world presents no grander field for such a conflict than in the open in.

Some Remarkable Stories of Child Life. What the Army does for State Children.

MANE of the most interesting and impressive branches of the social operations of The Army in all lands is that of the childrens' work in Australia; so valuable is this work in conpaction with the children of the State that the Government contributes very materially to its upkeep. In our Australian

Children's Homes there are over a thousand hoys to girls, and the followtiniaries stated with the state of the latest annual report of the Army's social work in Australia—throws a vivid light on some remarkable aspects of child life;

Still one may not spoil or initre the work even to gain sympathy.

A Cinderella of City Slums.

When collecting material for a booklet of this kind and a visit is paid to one of the Homes, an Officer may tell the interviewer of one of her charges whose history is wonderful in its pathos, and a delightful romance of real life in its sequel, but more than likely the Matton will say at its close, But of course I don't want you to make that ease public—because and the wish has to be respected. No absolute veto was, however, placed on a story which reveals a possibility of even startling beauty in the work among neglected children, especially among girls. Reform, of course, is looked for always, and many children become good in the higher sense But among them are some who, though their early days were spent amid every vice, and they have been literally reared on the fruit of the tree of Evil Knowledge, seem to regain the innocence of children and to regard certain forms of evil, not as those who fear it because of knowledge, but to whom it presents itself as something new and repulsive. This will seem inconceivable, possible, to some, but those who have care of such girls say Treally is so. Now for the story, necessarily briefly told.

Years ago a little girl of twelvo, clad in rage, her body attenuated, her shap, intelligent face pinched with hinger, her hands swathed in bandages, was brought before a magistrate in a metropolitan police court. A police efficial explained that the charge on the sheet against the child amounted to burglary, but suggested she should be dealt with as a neglected child, a course which was adopted, and which resulted in her being sent to one of The Army Industrial Homes for Girls. This was her history. Her mother died when she was a baby, and her father was, or became, a draukard and wastrel of the lowest type, consorting with a woman of equal depravity. As soon as the little girl was old enough she was driven, with blows and threats, into the streets to beg and steal to provide for the drunken orgies which provailed in the so-called home. Men and women of the worst description frequented the house, and in her veriest ladancy she became accustomed to every form of licentiousness and vice.

Beyond this, she was compelled to assist her father and the woman in many assistances enterprises, and it was one night that, having been lifted through a window of a house in which they intended to commit a burgiary, she was arrested. Just before leaving home for this purpose her father had mercilessly thrashed her, and while she was lying on the floor he had, in halfdrunken fury, danced on her hands, so that they were in a terrible condiwhen it was her good fortune to fall into the hands of the police. Such was the first stage in the poor girl's life.

Her Stay with the Army-What it Did.

Years passed by. Of course it would be nice to my she was very grate-fal and outle an angel right away. She was neither. A typical larrikiuess, it was one of her unpleasant practices to attend religious services, always with a crowd of other girls, and, as their ringleader, upset proceedings, Eventually she got into police bands, and was sent to a depot for neglected children, whence she was transferred to The Army's care. Upon the Officer going to fetch her the matron at the denot appeared delighted at the prosof getting rid of ber. 'Here she is; take her, and never let m her face again,' was her parting injunction. On nearing the station at which they were to entrain. Minnie boiled and had to be chased, to the amusement of a crowd of onlookers. She was captured and safely got to the Home, where she performed like a caged wild animal. Day and night she had to be watched, and for six months she ever seemed on the look-out for a way of a 'break.' Opportunity came one early morning, and though about a dozen of the other girls tried to prevent her, she made good her escape, and not until a distant suburb had been reached was the floet-footed wild creature overtaken. She continued to give trouble until one nomerable night in a Home meeting she got thoroughly converted, and a complete change came over her, an inexplicable change save to those accustomed to the power of the grace of God. It is about eighteen months now that she has led a life that has won for her the confidence and love of the Officers. She seems to have lost all desire for evil life, and rebukes other girls if she hears them talking of anything wrong. A lady connected with

Sunday school who visits her, and who knew her in her wild days, says crets of the System.

A word might be said here on the system adopted at The Army Industrial Schools. As far 2s is consistent with good order and discipline, the element of trust is introduced. Let us take the Marrambeena Home as an illustration. In the dormitories occupied by girls who have been in the Home sufficiently long to get acclimatized, so to speak, they are trusted by themselves. Only in one in which new untried girls sleep is an Officer always on duty, and though it would be quite possible for a girl without great difficulty to run away, the confidence thus reposed has never been abused by occupants of there rooms. Officers, of course, supervise meals and the duties of the day, which consist of housework in the morning until about 10 o'clock, when the younger girls attend school while the elder go into the workroom to learn needle and fancy work of all kinds. After dinner an hour's recess for tennis and other games precedes another spell in the workroom, the younger children mending the Home clothes that need it. Tea over, there is still another secess until prayers. The girls are very fond of singing, and some happy hours are spent in this exercise. tings, too, are held in which some of the girls take active part, praying and teiling their experiences. The effect of these may be seen in a little

It was noticed during recess hours, recently, that two or three groups had formed in different places, busily discussing something. Naturally the Other on duly ascertained what was going on, to find that Rible charges had been formed among the girls themselves, the girl who knew most in each group giving ber ideas to the others. The Murrumbeena girls are not all models yet, but the incident speaks for itself. Of course in other Army institutions of this character the system varies to suit the conditions, but the principle of moral elevation, as against that of mero bolls and bars, obtains through all.

All colours are alike to The Army, as far as claim upon its ald is concertail, and some of our Officers field quite congenial work in the care of aberiginal children entrasted to them by the Aberigines Department of Westralia. At Kalgooriie we have a Home where eighteen healthy, happy, merry dark girls lead contented lives, attending school (where they promerry dark girls seed contented lives, attending velocal (where they prove apt scholars) and learning all kinds of sewing and domestic duties. WHAT HIS MAJESTY KING GEORGE SAYS. A very interesting character sketch of King George, by Mr. W. T. Stead, appears in the Review of Reviews. From this it appears that H s Majesty regards emigration as the great im-perial necessity. The following extract from the King's famous "Wakeup" speech as reported in the papers, seems to show that the Knig has very strong and very sane views on the matter: -

To the distinguished represents tives of the commercial interests of the Empire, whom I have the pleasure of seeing here to-day, I venture to allude to the impression which seemed generally to prevail among their brethren across the seas, that the Old oretimen across the seas, that the Oil Country must wake up if she intends to maintain her old position of pre-eminence in her Colonial trade against foreign competitors (Hear, hear.) No one who had the priffler, of enjoying the experiences which we against foreign competitors. (Hear, hear.) No one who had the privilege of enjoying the experiences which we have had during our tour could fail to be struck with one all-prevailing and pressing demand—the want of population. Even in the oldest of our Colonies there were abundant signs of this need. Boundless tracts of country yet unexplored, bidden mineral wealth ca'ling for development, vast expanses of virgin soil ready to yield profitable crops to the settlers. And these can be enjoyed under conditions of healthy living, liberal laws, free institutions, sin exchange for the over-crowded cities and the almost hopeless struggle for existence, which alsa, too often is the fot of many in the Old Country. (Hear, hear.) But one condition, and one only, is made by our Colonial Brethren, and that is, 'Send us sur', Hear, hear.) I would go farther, and appeal to my fellow-countrymen at home to prove the strength of the nttachment of the Motherland to her children by sending to them only of her best. (Cheers.) By this means we may still turther strengthen, or at all events pass on unimpaired, that pride of race, that unity of sentiment and purpose, that feeling of common loyalty and obligation which kult together and alone can maintain the integrity of our

The Peril of the Fly.

The Perii of the Fly.

According to an eminent entomologist, the common house fly is one of the most dangerous pests that bother the community. Time was when the fly used to be defended as a scavenger, and he was not altogether unworthy of the name, but nowadays the scavenging work that the fly might do is much better done by practical sanitary science. Until lately, it was not known that the fly was an agent of disease, and even yet the extent to which this insect spreads death and destruction is not appreciated. Medical men are alive to the perii, and sanitary precautions tending to abolish the fly are being advocated and enforced.

Every house fly carries on its legs and body bacteria of all kinds, and the spores of moults and other organisms which accompany decay. He does not mean to do harm, but he cannot help it. The fact is that his legs and body and proboccis and wings are covered with microscopic hairs; and as the fly's habit is to frequent all sorts of fifth in its search for food, the bairs become covered with gerins. Of these it cannot possibly rid itself, and so it becomes a veritable "winged and wandering bundle of bacteria." As these facts become more generally known, no doubt, a big war on files will commence.

THE KINDNESS OF TWO ARMY LASSES TO A POOR OUTCAST.

home. The doctor says she is in consumption. I've been to see her and talked to and prayed with her, but she says size is too bad." Having reached their tiny quarters, over a cup of tea they concluded their talk about Lenn. May i teil the story of the unhappy Lena, for truly it is a pathetic narrative.

During the time that the Ensign and the Captain had been in the fown they had often heard of Lena—the pretitiest girl in the town she was eald to have heen. She had got married while only a child in years to a man much older than herself. It had not proved a very happy union, though things went on not too badly for a time and Lena flolized the bahe that in due time was born to her. But, alsa's the little one stckened and died, and the girl mother was left with empty arms and a soro and

At last, one evening, about six o'clock, some one came in haste for the officers. They hurried to Lenn's hore and found her use gamping for breath. The Ensign leaned over and said tenderity: "lis it all right Lenn, does Jesus save you now?"
"Oh, yes," she replied, then while they knelt the Ensign commended her soul to a God of mercy, and just as the "Amen" was uttered, there was a long gasping sigh, and Lenn's soul had left the frail body.

A FLAG WHICH KEEPS AN ESTATE.

Concerning the Great Duke of Wellington.

Welfington.

It is not generally known that on the anniversary of Waterloo each year—June 18, 1815, was the original day—the Duke of Wellington has to present the Sovereign with a new dag bearing the French colours, as an acknowledgment that his grace holds the manor of Strathfieldsaye at the will and pleasure of the King, that estate having beon presented to the Iron Duke as a national sitt for his success over Napoleon at Waterloo.

The ceremony of the presentation of the fiag is to-day much shorn of its ancient g'ory, for formerly the ruling duke used to bring the trophy himself on horseback and personally offered it to the Monarch. Nowadays it 's sent by deputy, however, and is then placed by some appointed equerry in the position assigned to it, name'y, over the marrie bust of the old Duke of We'lington that stands on its pedeatal in the suardroom at name'y, over the marb'e bust of the old Duke of We'lington that stands on its pedeatal in the guardroom at Windsor Cast'e. The flag which has rested there during the preceding year's then taken down and returned to the duke's messenger.

It is on the spec'al condition of thus rendering tb's annual tribute of feudal service as we may call it that the reigning duke is allowed so retain the splend de state a'ready mentioned. If he omits to send the banner on the proper day he forfeits the right to the estates.

The same principle appl'es to the heautiful domains of Blenheim, heid by the Duke of Mariborough, who similarly has to send a new flag on each anniversary of the batte (August 13, 1704). The banner is placed over the bust of the noted Duke of Mariborough also in the guardrom at Windson.

Adagust 13, 1704). The banner is placed over the bust of the noted Duke of Marihorough also in the guardrem at Windsor.

The grant to the Duke of Wellington is thus described in the Life written by Lieut-Colonel Williams: "In the House of Lords, on Jung 23, 1815, Earl Bathurst, pursuant to notice, moved the thanks of Parliament to the Duke of Wellington for his late glorious victory. In the course of his speech his Lordship said doe in battle all that a milliary man could do, frequently performing the duty of colonel and captain, railying his men, and ensuring the success of the battle.

In the House of Commons also, the same day, Lord Castlerengli moved the thanks of the House to the Duke of Wellington and others concent, d in the Battle of Walcrico, which was carried 'nem, con' "The Chancelor of the Exclequer, in a Camultee of Supriy on the Prince Recent's message, moved that $2200,00 + the grant of Supriy on the Prince Recent's message, moved that $2200,00 + the granted for the purchase of or fir the excellenger for the preclass of on the 18th were incredited, that he was not everyone despaired of victory, excent himself, let look had said too an aridee, declaring that he would never leave it till victory crowned our arms, although almost everyone about him met with death. They are mostly on the South African coast, along which richly laden transports and least Indiamen had to rall before the Suez Canni was constructed. The archives of Cape Golony alone have records of more than 7,000 vessels that have been wrecked along the Cape route, and now a syndeate has acquired licenses from the Cape Government granting authority to recover the contents of the thirty-two known wrecks and also the wedlester records and charts containing information respecting them. While men are ever deviaing new schemes to get rich, lot us remember that the work of the Salvation Army is to reacue souls from the ocean of sin and thus lay up treasure in Heaven.

STEAD Mr.

Commends The Army's Spiritual and Philanthropic Agencies, and says Criticism is the Best Index of Progress, and the most effectual Advertisement.

From the London Social Gazetta

From the Lende Mr. W. T. Stead, a prince of fournalists, and himself an interviewer of notabilities, from the Ka.ser to the Shade of Glada one, was kind enough—and I use the word in noonventional sense—in a recent laterview, to express his views on some phases of The Army's activity.

He received me in his interesting sanctum, hard by Kingaway, where the offices of the "Review of Reviews" and what are known as "Stead's Publications" are now situated.

Stead's Publications' are now situated.

The wais of his private room, where they are not covered by book cholyve, are embellished with portraits of eminent personages of all nationalities. Monarchs, pollucians, men of letters, famous ecclesiastics, are everywhere n ewdence. A large framed portrait of Cardinal Mannings stood on the ground in a corner, while a bust of his Emineace, stands "visa-vis" on his deak. In another corner is a massive model of a human skull, amillog in perpetual irony on the illusions and vanities of life. Diagonally: opposite hangs a reproduction of Mr. Holman Hunt's great picture, "The Light of the World." Early and Staunch. Friend.

Early and Staunch Friend. Early and Staunch Friend.
Unhealtatingly, Mr. Stead may be claimed as one of The Army's earliest friends; a statement which does not commit bim to eye-to-eye agreement with all we believe is or do, but places him under the category of thinking men, with a wide knowledge of the world and its affairs, who set the seal of their approval upon The Army's alms and ideals.

I invited him to begin where he would, and to say what he liked, knowing that whatever fell from his lips would be not only in creating, but also noteworthy.

a Social descring.

He scalled genially, remarking that he had in the past written so much about The Army, that he would be in danger of repeating himself. Would I therefore put aposing questions?

"Tell me, then," would I, "whether The Army's policy of spacing current orlicions commends lissify they you?"

of The Army's efforts, said his personal feelings were shared by a'l his colleagues, whether on the Borough Council or the Board of Guardians. He was convinced that all who were engaged in public work were bound contact with The Salvation Army, As a Poor Law guardian he was especial-ly able to appreciate The Army's efforts, and he helieved that in The General's Land Colony Scheme, as exemplified at Hadleigh, they cou'd find the solution of one of the worst problems of our day.

In his lecture, which was another magnificent mental and physical achievement, The General emphasized the vital truth that the safest, the surest, and the most economical method of regenerating society was by religion. All that The Army had achieved had depended on that.

In proposing a vote of thanks the Mayor of Hove said The General was an extraord nary man for work and energy. He had given them all that afternoon a lesson of what he could

This brilliant civic assembly gave place at night to a profoundly solemn gathering, when, with the great building crowded in every part, our Leader made a powerful attack on 9 n. Brighton H ppodrome differs from every other building of its kind in one important respect; this is that all the seating space is confined to the ground floor, and one sweeping halcony. This ba'cony, v'ewed from the stage, seems to be suspended by domelike roof with nothing e'se intervening between the speaker and the farthermost point of the Auditor The effect produced is one of vastness, and when thronged with people, as it was on Sunday night, the speciacle must have filled the speaker with inspiration.

Upon the task of winning these nte for God The General set his heart and concentrated his powers. "I have come to Erighton on purpose (he sa'd). Th's is the end to which the remaining days of my life are Th's is the end to which consecrated. Perhaps this is the last appeal I shall ever make. My voice may never be heard in Brighton again." Not only did he plead as though it actually was his last opportunity, but he warned the people as though it certainly was theirs.

In response to his appeals, backed up by the prayers and invitations of Colonel Lawley and Colonel Whatmore, fifty-five persons surrendered.
Among those were three young women from one house.

BRIGADIER POTTER IN THE CAPITAL CITY.

Two Interesting Days. Bf gadier Scott-Potter visited Ottawa I., and conducted the week-end meetings. A most enjoyable time was spent. The Comrades turned out d from Knee Drill till the close of the day, God was with us. At night one soul sought and found par-don. The Brigadler paid tribute to the Band and Corps, and commented n their efficiency.
On Monday, the Brigadier, attired in native costume, gave a very in-teresting lecture on Japan to a very appreciative and well-attended aud-lence. His rominiscences of that country, and of the early days of the Salvation Army were very instruct ve, and till 10.20 p.m. the crowd listened with rapt attention. The Brigadler was assisted by Corps Cadet Davey and her Japanese Party, which gave Japanese drills, songs, etc., to the intense delight of the crowd.—J. J.

VISIT OF BRIGADIER AND MRS. ADBY.

And a Hallelujah Wedding.

Fredericton.—The last week has been full of special events. We have been favoured with a number of visitors, including our worthy D. C. and Mrs. Adby, and Y. P. S. M. Hang and wife, from St. John I. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights the meetings were led by Brigad er and Mrs. Adby. The ac-nouncement that the Brigadier and Mrs. Adby were to conduct three days' Special Meetings was sufficient to draw a large crowd. This was Mrs. Adby's first visit to Fredericton, and we do not feel we are going too far when we say she won the hearts of

Tuesday night there was Swearing In of Soldiers. The service was an impressive one, and will not soon be forgotten by the large crowd present. But the event of the week was slated for Wednesday night, when the wedding of Band of Love Leader Maggie Mitchell and Bands-man Selby Locke took place. The Brigadier conducted the ceremony in the presence of a crowd which filled the spacious Citadel. The "I wills" were clearly spoken, and in a few brief seconds the happy pair were man and wife. Mrs. Hargrove was then called upon to say a few words on behalf of the bride, who, by the way had lived with Ensign and Mrs. Hargrove over four years. The En-sign was then called upon to say 2 few words for the groom. The bride was attended by Sister Maud Beatty, ene r. P. "AM I MY BROTHER'S KEEPER ?"

The somewhat sarcastic question which forms the heading to this article was asked by Cain of the Alm'ghty after the blood of Abel-shed by Cain—had cried unto the Lord from the ground.

For a long time past mankind has decreed that a man is his brother's keeper.

According to the newspapers, a boroner recently poured out well-merited rebuse to a couple of young men who, in company with a third one, were strolling along the bank of a deep capal. One of the young men slipped off the bank into the water and was drowned. His companions made no effort to save him, but stood and watched their companion die. This unberole conduct called forth the censure of the coroner and his Jury, and, no doubt, of most other men.

West a contrast the r conduct affords to that of Thomas Reyno'ds role conductor, who, in Spanish River train wreck, though bleeding and wounded, clothing frozen on him, saved sixteen lifes, at the peril of his own from leath in the ky waters of the river. His conduct, was everywhere appland. ed, and he had conferred upon him the Albert Medal, first class Royal gnition of his bravery. Yes, man everywhere declares that man Is his brother's keeper by honour ng those who help their fellows, and deriding those who do not. is so in a temporal matter, h much more is it a fact in a spiritual It is the imperative duty of Christian to save his fellows spiritual death, and to be 'n-in season and out of season in persuading them to fice from the wrath to come. Notes and Reflections.

BY THE CHIEF OF THE STAFF.

TESTIMONY.

'For Heaven's sake, don't come called religion." I am afraid that the ejaculation was a little stronger, but in substance these were the words with which I was greeted the other morning as I entered a railway compartment. I calmed the speaker's ruffled spirit by telling him that I had so much other work to do on fourney that I should have l'ttle time to devote to his interests, and pres ently I found that although, as frankly admitted, he was an utterly godless man, with no outlook beyond the churchyard and very little confidence in anything outside his bank. he was a sincere admirer Ceneral, and a believer in the utility of the work of The Salvation Army,

When, later, I came to c'oser quarters with him. I found also that long ago he had known something, aithough perhaps not very much, of the blessings of relig on, and so I judged that above all things he most disliked to be brought into proximity with any one or anything that might bring to mind experiences and convictions of the past.

What Our Uniform Stands For.

The incident, common enough I dare say in the lives of many Salvationists, started some reflections of more or less importance in my own

To begin with, I rejoied—as I have rejoied a thousand times before—that all over the world men recognize in the uniform of the Satvatonist, a reminder of the claims of God. Look at it how you may, that is a gain to the church of Christ; it is a gain to the Kingdom of Righteousness; "It is something to be thankful for: it is something to be proud of, if only because it is little short of a miracle. It is acomething to increase our faith in God. It is the witness of the world generally to the great central fact of our h story, namely, that we stand for religion; that we estand for religion;

God First and Foremost.

This recognition does something else. One sometimes bears now-adays from would-be critics that The sometimes bears Salvation Army is less a spiritual force and more a humanitarian force and more a humanitarian agency than was formerly the case. or than ought to be the case. To any one who really knows the facts this statement is an absurd blunder. But here is a witness from the world itself that the first great outstanding feature of The Salvation Army, that which has impressed itself first and foremost upon the mind of the multitude, is not that we are humanitarian, or social, or philanthrop'c—although we are all these put to-gether—but that we are religious. Wherever men meet, east or west, or south, and we are the subof their thought or whether the result be to applaud or condemn us, to praise or to blame us, it is our religion which takes the first in attention. It may attract; 't may'repol: It may be a reason for approval, or a ground for hatred, but there it is.

And so, when Salvationists appear among their fellows, there is a kind of universal instinct which, without knowing it, brushes as de the nonsense which is cometimes taiked about us, and by an involuntary act of both intel sence and conscience acknowledges that first and foremost we stang for God.

Compelling Attention.

But to return. Not only does the existence of The Army, its audiorm, and its work speak to men of the claims of God, but it goes further—it challengue men to account for their own conduct. It has, by God's bleesing upon us, become atmost impossible for a Salvat'. Onlet to appear in any company in any part of the world without instantly arresting the attent on of men, and merely by the silent testimony of the uniform, or some other outward sign of unity with us, compelling the r thoughts to turn away for a moment from the trifles of time to the unanswered quest'ons which retate to eternity, and to answer the great inquiry: 'Am I right or am I wrong?'

Our Inevitable Influence

I know, of course, that this is often very crude; I know it is often very brief in dis Influence; I know it is often associated with bitterness and contumely, and sometimes with scorn and passion. But there is is! I glory in it; I praise God for it; I bow myself before the Cross of Christ with great joy when I think about it; I see in 't something of a fulfilment of the Apostle's words, 'We are My, 'Bolstles, read and known of all men.'

Many who read these notes will be rem'nded of innumerable examples of the power of similar influences. this recognition is not confine to uniform. It extends to almost everything associated with The Army -our Meetings, our muric, our songs, our bills, our books, our newspapers all have in some degree a simil influence. Nav. something of the same kind applies to the very men tion of our name in the Press, or the factory, or the mill and shop; so that the very l'es and slanders which are propagated against us propagated by fore people for gain, and by other for love of evil, and by others still follything of this strange influence upon

"I hate you," sa'd a poor godless fellow the other day to his lad who had lately joined The Army. "I know, I am wrong, but I hate you, and I won't have you in the house unless you give it up."

What People Expect.

What a responsibility this involves! How great is the duty of witnessing for Christ, even among those who are quite unprepared to receive our testimony! But how much greater that responsibility becomes when we know that all ground us are those who actually expect that we shall make some effort to enforce the silent testimony of our association with The Army, by witnessing to the power of God do our lives!

"Why?" saked a fellow-passenger of a Salvationist on the raivary the other day, as he jut down his newspaper, "Why do you not speak to me about my saul?" From the mement he had even the mean in uniform enter the compertment be perting the come be invited by Truly, it was a time of blessing to both young and old.

A Bible reading by the Commiss'oner kept everyone fully interested.
The main lesson he sought to drive home to the hearts of his hearers was that God is better pleased with His people when He finds them actively engaged in doing good than if they were wrapped up in selfish contemplation of His expected coming. e Staff Band then playel a tion well calculated to keep everyone awake on a hot afternoon, namely. While the Commissioner was explaining the meaning of the cere-mony from the Army's viewpoint the proud and happy parents—Adj and Mrs. Peacock—took their places on the platform with their infant son, After the reading of an appropriate portion of Ser pture by the Chief Becretary, the Commissioner took the child in his arms, and then requested the whole congregation to rise and join in singing, "I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Od." In a solemn and impressive dedicatory prayer he then gave little Gordon Walter Peacock to God and The Army. Master Gordon was very good Master Gordon was very good throughout the whole of the proceed-

After the simple ceremony both Adjt, and Mrs. Peacock spoke briefly expressing the'r grat'tude to God for His goodness, and asking an interest in the prayers of all that they might he given wisdom to train their child for God. Prayer was then offered by L'eut. Col. Howell, immediately after which Lieut.-Col. Pugmire made an appeal for surrender to Christ. A charming sight was witnessed as a little girl walked out to the Mercy Seat, followed shortly afterwards by her sister. "God bless the children" prayed The Commissioner; them for God and for The Army."

NIGHT.

'At night all the available scating space in the large tent was occupied, and when the sides of the tent were lifted for ventilation purposes a standing round as closely to the tent as the rails would admit.

The meeting commenced with the singing of the time-bonoured old song, "There is a Better World, They Say." The prayers were interspersed with songs, amongst which was that refrain "Still Unsaved Still Un-saved!" The Commissioner used it again and again with the most powerful effect.

After a very acceptable solo by Lt. Col. Pugmire, The Commissioner read a pasim and interspersed hi comments with some very powerful illustrations. Speaking of sacrificing for God, he told a dramatic story of a Russian revolutionary mother whose daughter, at the hands of her jailors, was subjected to the supreme indig nity, and then barbarously executed, while of the mother's two sons, one was exiled and the other imprisoned. Some one, speaking to the mother of the great sorrow that had been laid upon her, she rapturous'y declared to him that because her children had so suffered for the cause, she was the happiest mother in Russia.

Then again, speaking of the longsuffering love of Christ, the Commis-s'oner said that Dr. Paton, the great M ssionary to the Isles of the South-ern Sea, had a brother who for a long time was estranged from God. And for thirty long years did the mother of the wayward son place a light in the window each night, so that he might know there was a welcome for him, and each morning did the loving mother ascend a little knoll commanded a view of the road along which the young man would have to come in the hope that she might see him and welcome him back.

Another very tender human flustra-tion was used by The Commissioner to show Divine love and forbearance.

Jack was a wayward son. His disreputable conduct brought shame to his parents, and broke his mother's one day they, with their busbands, came to the father and besought higs to cast off the son—to disown him on account of the shame that he brought to the family.

Yos, said the heart-broken father. turning to the sons-in-law, you could do this because you are not related to him by blood. Then, turning to-his daughters, the father said, You my gris could do this, because you are only his sisters, but I'm Jack's father—I could not cast him off,

As may be imagined, the recital off these moving incidents of human life deeply touched the great audience.

Commissioner took for the test of his address the "I." "Knock," and words:— 'Bebold.'' on them built one of the most powerful and stirring appeals to heart and conscience that we have listened to-for a long time. The crowd, in spite of the great heat, hung upon his words, and went into the prayer-meeting with a deep feeling of solempity resting upon them. The Chief Secretary, Lieut-Col. Pugmire, and Brigadier Morehen leut a hand with the Prayer Meeting, in which elevers souls came to the Cross, amongst them being a father, mother, and their little daughter.

Colonel and Mrs. Mapp

CONDUCT AN EXCELLENT MEETING, ASSISTED BY THE LISGAR STREET CORPS.

On Thursday, the Chief Secretary and Mrs. Mapp conducted the meet-ing at the Camp. They were assist-ed by a number of Headquarters Officers, and the Lisgar Street Band and Corps.

A very good congregation as-sembled in the tent, the Soldiers and friends from Lagar Street Corps forming a fair percentage of the crowd. They are evidently quite enthusiastic over the camp meetings down that way, and all seemed re-solved to show their appreciation of the opportunities afforded them, for they pitched in in true zaivation style, praying, singing, testifying and fishing with great real. And Colonel Mapp encouraged them to work, keeping himself in the background, and seeking to bring out the best in the forces he was directing. The leading feature of the meeting, therefore, was a fusitade of short testimosics Officers, Handsmen and Soldiers all taking part, and giving expression to their feelings and beliefs each in their own way.

Then there was plenty of good music — the excellent Band playing three stirring marches, and a quar-tette rendering some tuneful med-

At eight o'clock sharp the Town Hall was nicely filled with people, and while Capt. Horn from Huntsville sang, the bridal party marched on the platform. The bride was sup-ported by Capt. Mary Wales, from St. Mary's, little Vio'et Hay acting as flower girl, while Capt. Hiram Graves, from Kinmonat, acted as best man Impressive silence prevalled while the Major read the articles of marriage. After the ceremony was completed the bride gave a solo. Then Capt. Richardson expressed his determination to follow God, and said that his great object in life was to Jesus. The party afterwards pro-ceeded to the Citadel, where the Soldiers had provided a beautiful cake and banquet. Nearly one hun-dred people were seated. The Bracebridge Citadel never witnessed a more happy or satisfied crowd of people.

Major Hay finally informed them that Capt. and Mrs. Richardson would remain with them as their leaders.—

RIVERDALE CORPS AND THE EDITORIAL STAFF.

On Saturday Brigadier Bond and the Editorial Staff led the meeting, assisted by the Riverdale Band and Songsters. The crowd was well to the average, and practically filled the spacious tent. It is noteworthy that the week-night attendance at the Camp th's year shows a marked increase over previous years

The Band and Songsters took quite a prominent part on this occasion, giving an excellent programme of music and song. The speakers were Capta'n Church, who gave a short salvation address; Captain Dodd, who read a port on of Scripture, and mented on it. Mrs. Adjutant Burton, who gave her personal testinmony, and Brigadier Bond, who gave as interesting lecture on Missonary Work in South Africa. As the Brigadier related various incidents of the Salvation War in that great country Brother E. Gray illustrated them by rapid crayon sketches. It was a very interesting meeting, full variety, and all seemed to greatly en-

THE CADETS' SPECIAL SERVICE.

Monday night was very showery and in consequence the crowd at the Camp was somewhat thinned. Neverthe ess, the tent was about half full-everyone having pad ten cents admission to witness the unique service ranged by Brigadier Taylor, en-Wychwood Band and Songslers were present and previous to the special service rendered selections in music and sonz, irrigader Morehen was chairman. The "Life of Moses" oc-cupled the major portion of the evening and proved to be a service of ex-ceptional interest. It was well ar-ranged and well carried out, and served to impress the main events this great man's life on the minds of all present in a striking manner. To describe it briefly, it was a recital of the Bib's story, interspersed with appropriate music and song, and varied at latervals by dislocues between two Cadets, one of whom represented Pharaoh and the other Moses. It is evident that such a sinnendous subject gives ample or portunity for beinging out all the talent in the Training Co.less. Everyhody had some part to play, and they did it faultlessly, reciting their parts without any besitation whatever. It must certainly lave been a good memmust certainly have seen a good mean-ory test. The singers also had a part to play, and as the recital pro-ceeded they would burst forth buts song to signalize some great event

Thus, for instance, when Israel triumphed over Egypt, a band of Halle-lujab Lassies with tembourines appeared and sang the Song of Miriam. and when Moses destroyed the solden call they sang "Who is on the Lord's Side?" in confusion Brigadier Tay-lor recited "The Borial of Moses," thus bring by a very instructive and interesting meeting to a close

Most Intelligent Animal.

"What animal has the highest degree of intelligence?" was the question recently put to Dr. William T. Hornaday, the director of the New York Zoological Park. Without hesi-tation he replied:

"The elephant, first of all, and then the orang outang and his brother ape, the chimpansee. An adult cephant soon perceives that it is folly to ob-Struct the march of human events. In six months a wild elephant become a domestic animal. He will be wood and do other work with all the steadiness of an ox or horse. He understands right off that mind is superior to matter; that his captor is stronger than himself, and that peace, security, the good things of the earth, and longevity are the certain rewards of the fellow who obeyn the law and settles down into habits of industry. The natives d scovered long ago that it is cheaper to catch elephants than to breed them. Gunda was taught in two days to rine a bell and to drop pennies in a bank nailed to the wall. I should be afraid to say how many different things an elephant can learn to do one after amother, either at command or out of his memory with no word from his keeper-thirty, at least, I am sure."

The Habit of Not Feeling Well.

It is said that man is a lazy animal, We are all more or less prone to in-delence, and it is the easiest and most natural thing in the world for young people to accustom themselves to lying down or lounging on a sofa because they think they are tired or not well. Much so-called "invalid-ism" is simple laziness, fostered and indulged from childhood. There is a erest danger that girls who are deli-tate while rowing up, and longe around the house and lie down whenever they feel the least bit out of sorts, will form a habit of invalidism when they reach maturity. How often do we see such girls 'brace up' at once whenever anything happens which interests or excites them! up a body of men precisely like our police, except that they acted as fremen as well.

"In the relgn of Augustus, when Rome had a population of nearly a million, there was a police force of seven thousand men, with a commissioner, inspectors, captains, and lieutenants. Their twenty-one station-houses were carefully distributed over the whole area of Rome. One of these old-time station-houses was exhumed in 1868, and the remains of it show that the Roman police were well housed and cared for. They had a fine huilding of marblo and brick, with baths, a gymnasium, and a fine huilding of marblo and brick, with baths, a gymnasium, and a fine huilding of marblo and brick, with baths, a gymnasium, and a fine huilding of marblo and strick, with baths, a gymnasium, and a fine marblo and brick, with baths, a gymnasium, and a fine marblo and brick, with baths, a gymnasium, and a fine household guards, and every beam to have been up police at all. The king, of course, in each castle had his own household guards, and every feudal lord was escorted by a band of armed retainers for his personal protection. But these feudal retainers were themselves a cause of great disturbance, since they offan foucht together in the streets, and felt no obligation toward any one but the'r own ch'ets. Private persons had to garmed and usually went about at night in companies, so as to insure their safety. After sunset, most constables received no nay; they were only temporarily appointed; and therefore they had no training, no special intelligence, and no permanent position. About 1759 a regular police court was established at Bow Street, London.

"Meanwhile, London was growing rapidly, and crime was on the increase, even though, the law was so severe as to punish the theti-of a pocket hindkerchief with hanging.

"It was in, 1828 that an effective police was first established in London by the passage of a law latroduced by Sir Robert Peel. This did away entirely with the divided authority of the past, and organized the first modern police force in the world. It gave in London a weil-traked and disciplined body of public guardians, who were adequately paid. Arrasgements were made for regular patrols both by night and by day, while a reserve force was stationed at headquarters ready to he despatched to any point where its services might be needed. "It is strange enough, and perhaps characteristic of Br'tish conservat'sm, that this admirable innovation which gave security and good order to the civicans of London, was relocative attacked by press and people al ke. "The history of the police force in the United States is very much like that in England. The experience of New York may be taken as typical. So long as the city was controlled by the Dutch, it had two compasies of watchmen, who were just as freeholent as the watchmen of early London. They had some troube in socaring weapons, and so about 1958, a "rattle watch" was organized. Although we only commenced op-erations there twelve months ago, a band of men-Soldiers has already been enrolled. The opening of the Hall will now give the Colonel and his Officers fac'ilties for reaching the women and children.

a Corps in Reims, Colonel Furnachon conducted a four days' campaign. There were very few people (says the Colonel) in that old French town where the kings used to be crowned, who were not aware of The Army's Coming: and not only was the Hall crowded every night, but we had to turn away many hundreds for whom we had no room.

In the audiences were Catholics of the most fervent type, seated side by side with Socialists, and even leaders of the local Anarchist groups were present. They all sang our hymns like old-time Salvationists. Three captures were made.

This opening is the outcome of the work of a man who had known The Army in Belgium and who on going to live at Reims, asked to be allowed to sell "War Crys" in the town. Short-ly afterwards he met some Salvationists who were doing their term of military service in the neighbour-hood. Together they commenced to hold Army Meetings, and it is in re-sponse to their oft repeated appeals that Officers have been sent there.

This year's appeal in France for financial help for Salvation Army work, known as the National Appeal, has realized 5,106 francs, an increase of 890 francs over last year's effort.

One conspicuous feature in connection with the Convention was an exposition of various material used by the different organisations, denominations and nations in the Sunday School work, and it is statifying to know that the exhibit gathered and arranged by the Commander's by the Eastern Young People's Secretary, Colonel Margetts, was an eye-opener to many, and caused unusual comment of a favourable character.

Encouraging news is being received from Hawaii; Major Willis has recently rented a separate Hall at Honolulu for the benefit of the Koreans located in that city.

The English language, as also the Bible, is being taught these comrades in the night school there, and in addition to this, several de single have been made for Christ in The Army meetings.

Some years ago the Inspectress of Aboriginals in Queensland heard that a white child was living in an outback camp amongst a rather wild tribe of aboriginals. It was feared that the child had been stolen at some time or other from some white family. In order not to frighten the tribe, tho inspectress personally fourneyed to the camp, and before mentioning the child endeavonred to gain the confidence of the blacks by kind words. Eventually the child was produced, and there cretainly was a vast contrast between her complexion and the very dasky ones of the tribe. A very black woman with three black children hanging around her vowed that the white child was hers, and strongly resented every surgestion put forth of taking the child away. However, after much persuasion the inspectress induced the whole family to come with her to Hrisbane for a trip. The Government authorities decided that as no information concerning the white child could be got from the blacks, she should be sent for some years to our Children's Home at Yeronga.

child could be got from the backers, she should be sent for some years to our Children's Home at Yeronga.

The black mother was still very averse to parting with Chrissle, and the inspectress was anxious not to gain the enmity of the blacks. It was arranged for the whole family to go for a few days to the Children's Home. Here a small dormitory was vacated for their use. After seeing the Home and kind Officers and children, she was induced to leave Chrissle, and eventually, with her children, she returned to her tribe. It was never definitely found out if Chrissle was a stolen white child or was really the child of the black woman, although there was a little stir in the newspapers over her case at the time, and a mother in N.S.W., reading them, was led to think and hope that Chrissle was her long-lost little girl, who had mysterlously disappeared when very voung. Salvation Songs

Holiness.

Tune-None of Self. 1 Oh, the bitter shame and sorrow
That a time could ever be
When I let the Saviour's pity
Plead in vain, and proudly answered—
'All of self, and none of Thee!'

Yet He found me; I beheld Him Bleeding on the cursed tree, Heard Him pray, Forgive them, Fa-ther!'

And my wistful heart said faintly—
"Some of self, and some of Tuce!"

Higher than the highest heavens, Deeper than the deepest sea, Lord, Thy love at last has conquered; Grant me now my spirit's longing— 'None of self, and all of Thee!'

Tune—I'm Believing. Sins of years are washed away, Blackest stains become as snow,

Darkest night is changed to day,
When you to the river go.

· Chorus. I'm believing and receiving.

Selfishness is lost in love— Love for Him whose love you know; All your treasure is above, When you to the river go.

Fighting is a great delight; Never will you fear the foe, Armed by King Jehovah's might, When you to the river go.

War and Testimony.

Hark, Hark, My Soul! 236, G. and Bb; Song Book, No. 564 Hark, hark my soul, what war-like songs are swelling Through all the land, and on from door to door;

How grand the truths those burning strains are telling.
Of that great war till sin shall be no more.

Salvation Army, Army of God, Onward to conquer the world with Fire and Blood.

Onward we go, the world shall hear or singing,

come, guilty souls, for Jesus blds
you come;
And through the dark its echoes,
loudly ringing;
Shall lead the wrotched, lost, and wandering home.

-O, happy day, 11, G and Bb; Bong Book, No. 230.

Bong Book, No. 230.
I never shall forget the day
When Jesus washed my eins away;
I was onslaved, but Jesus saved;
And free from sin my soul was made.

Happy day! When Jesus washed my eins away.

On Hell's dark brink, in sore dismay, Through sin condemned, I trembling lay; But on that day I heard Him say, "My Blood has washed thy sins away."

Come, all ye sin-sick souls, draw near, By faith, to Christ; He now is here; This is your day; why, why delay? His Blood now washes sins away.

But the Shepherd made answer:
"This of mine Has wandered away from me.
And although the road be rough and steep, I go to the desert to find my sheep!"

But none of the ransomed ever knew How deep were the water, crossed; Nor now dark was the night that the Lord passed through Ere He found His sheep which was lost. Out in the desert He heard its cry-Sick and helpless, and ready to die.

Tune—Guide me, great Jehovah, 165; Heimsley, 167.

Helmsley, 167.

Hasten to the cross, backslider,
Flee to Jesus! tarry not!
Could the arms of mercy wider
Stretch, thy hell-bound race to stop!
Christ rejecter,
Hell will surely be thy lot.

See, for thee thy Saviour's waiting! Hark, how for thy soul He pleads! Justice claims once more abating! "Its for thee He intercedes! Grace restoring, Pardoning thy life's misdeeds.
